Denver, CO: Today, the Institute for Natural Medicine (INM) is pleased to announce the video release of the 2023 Strauss-Wisneski virtual lecture, Whole Person Pain Care: Integrative Models in a Federally Qualified Health Center and the Veterans Health Administration.

This lecture features John Finnell, ND, PhD(C), MPH, and Sharad Kohli, MD, and was recorded at the University of Colorado, Denver, on July 16th. Dr. Finnell is the chair of the INM's MD/DO Advisory board, which has worked tirelessly to create opportunities such as this lecture for interprofessional discussion and collaboration. The full lecture is available for viewing by the public immediately at this link: https://hsl4.ucdenver.edu/strauss/Dr_FinnellandKohli.html.

The hour-long lecture discusses the implementation of Whole Person Pain Care - an interdisciplinary stepped-care approach that seeks to address all aspects of a person's health, life, and relationships - within a Federally Qualified Health Center and the Veterans Health Administration. This lecture also explores the implications for broader implementation across the healthcare system.

INM believes that presentations such as this lecture are vital to providing education and training in successful collaborative medicine system models that benefit both patients and providers. We thank Drs. Finnell and Kohli for sharing their expertise, and the University of Colorado, Denver, for hosting the lecture and making it available to the general public in this recorded form.
